

Lyn Howard

I enjoyed art as a subject at school but took a very different route which led to a career in Pharmaceuticals, initially in the field of research and latterly in Quality Assurance with not much time for art. That said I have had occasional forays into crafting with various groups of children whilst involved with Kids Clubs.

I visited an ALP exhibition at St Anne's Arts and Community centre and was impressed with the high standard and the variety of work displayed and enjoyed speaking with the members. I joined some years later and whilst not used to painting have explored my natural preferences and have been particularly enthused by such techniques as gelatin plate mono-printing and like to incorporate my own papers in the collages which I have produced. I have gained confidence in the areas I previously lacked and even tried acrylic painting.

I have exhibited my work at various exhibitions in North Devon with ALP and more recently at the Easter 2022 exhibition at St Johns Community Hall.
