

Nigel Oates

I have been fortunate to be able to draw and paint, and enjoyed it very much at school. My subsequent career in horticulture has used colour, shape and form, whether it is with plants or when illustrating a commemorative booklet for the local authority I was working for.

For 20 years I ran my own business designing gardens, and this artistic trait comes through in many of my pictures, which often feature various landscapes. I also like working with abstract designs, which gives me more freedom of expression.
